THE KENTUCKY KERNEL

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

FRIDAY EDITION
SEMI-WEEKLY KERNEL

NEW SERIES NO. 3

VOLUME XXIX Z 246

Complain, Too
We can't understand it. We begin to feel like there is a storm in the offing simply because four complimentary notes were received in the mail yesterday. At the risk of being considered a "blow," we will reprint a paragraph from each note. We like to receive this type of letter, but it helps a great deal, too, to be told of our faults—a few at a time. So don't hang back.

The Big "I"

"Dear Editor: Not believing in being one to blow a person up. I do however believe in giving credit where it is due and I wish through this 'Clearing House' column you would tender my congratulations to Joe Creason for his splendid article on the football team in 'Calling 'em Wild' of Tuesday's Kernel."—F. B.

Sports Editor

"The Kernel: I have only been here a week and already I have begun to appreciate your paper and staff, especially Joe Creason, sports editor. How about a little article about him?"—J. L. B. "We'll have something about Joe in the next issue."

Aw, Shucks!

"Just a short line to compliment you on the Kernel. Thus far it has been far in advance of any of the previous four years. I've spent the campus. You have given plugs to practically all your staff but it seems to me you have overlooked one of your best members, Joe Creason."—D. J. C. "We don't have to plug for him—the readers are doing that."

We're Self-Conscious

"Dear Editor: I wish to command Mr. Winer for his fine article in the Tuesday Kernel. It offered intelligent and enjoyable reading and I sincerely hope to find more of his writing in succeeding editions of the paper. His treatment of the subject involved was clear-cut and pertinent and I wish to take this opportunity to congratulate you for your editorial policy and Mr. Winer for his excellent bit of work."—R. L. S. '39.

Sure Enough

We're blushing.

About The Weather.

"We were especially reminded of how cold it was Wednesday when we noticed the size of the block of ice (in front of Neville Hall) on our way to first hour class at McVey. Upon our return after the fourth hour it had actually lost only about five pounds. Naturally, we were surprised, for we had seen the same thing happen in July and it was really pitiful looking."—A Summer School Student.

Turning The Tables

A timid little freshman last, too meek for her initials signed to this, would like to suggest that while the professors are asking for each student's name, they might drop a hint as to their own identity. Frequently do students pass an entire semester in an instructor's class, calling him Mr. X.

Every Cloud Has...

A letter just came into the business office which we feel we ought to print. "Dear Sir: Please find enclosed money order for the Kernel for the coming semester. Although I've been away for three years now going to George Washington U. and working in the F. B. I., I still enjoy it. Hats off to your sports writers and feature writers particularly. Pardon the blushes for some of the editorials and headlining last year. They looked like they belonged in the U-HI Lights. The lead off headline this year would scare any but an old student. More power to you!"—Ward McCabe. We blush ourselves when we think of that first headline this year, but you have to experiment to weed out the bad—and that definitely was.

Union Building Notes

Let's all dance in the Student Union building. Not nearly enough students are availing themselves of the privileges extended to them by their membership cards. There is

Not Good—
BUT LOUD
By ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

Big Time In Corbin

Marvin N. Gay, sports editor of The Kernel last year and now advertising manager of the Corbin Daily Tribune, pens that he is "having a big time in Corbin as there are gobs of gals, etc." He volunteers the following advice for journalism students: "Believe it or not. It is a lot easier working on a regular newspaper than on The Kernel. Don't let those profs kid you about how tough it is."

Not Ardent Enough

Students in the know are heckling because "Behind The Eckdahl," which last Tuesday carried a few facts concerning Miss Jane Elgin Dudley, failed to mention that she thinks Leslie Howard was not nearly ardent enough in "Romeo and Juliet."

Congratulations

Congrats to our favorite lawyer, John L. Young, senior in the Law college who recently passed the Kentucky bar examination. Now let anybody try to win a suit from us for libel or anything.

Plug Of The Week

To the Alpha Gams for the air of geniality one finds at their house.

KIRWAN TO TALK
AT FIRST SUKY
PRE-GAME RALLY

Radio, Speakers, And Parade
To Usher In Rally At 6:45 Tonight In Gym

TO HOLD TRYOUTS FOR CHEERLEADERS

SuKy Head Will Introduce
Shively; Heber To Interview
Irwin And Honaker

SuKy's first pre-game football rally will officially get underway tonight at 6:45 o'clock in the alumini gym. Featuring the rally will be a radio interview with head coach Ab Kirwan, new Kentucky football mentor who is enjoying his first year of coaching at the University over station WHAS.

Following the radio interview and speakings the University of Kentucky "Best Band in Dixie" will lead a parade of students and fans down through the main arteries of Lexington. Through the courtesy of the Lexington Fire Department a fire truck has been obtained in order to precede the band and clear the streets for the members of the parade.

The members of the band, SuKy students, and students of the University and fans will assemble at the alumini gym. From there the parade will start following the pep rally at about 8:30.

The parade will march from the stone down Lime to Main St., East corner of Euclid Ave and Lime.

On Main to Rose and out Rose to Euclid and West on Euclid to the gym.

Following the parade a dance will be held in the recreation room on the main floor of the Student Union building. All students are invited to attend the dance which will last to about 11 o'clock.

On the speakers platform, Elliot Beard, president of SuKy, will introduce Bernie Shively, head of the University Athletic Department, to the new students. Following this there will be an interview between Coach John Heber, of the Henry Clay High School Blue Devils, and Mr. Kirwan and Mr. L. S. Honaker, coach of the Maryville Highlanders.

Featuring the pep-rally will be tryouts for all students who are interested in being cheerleaders for the Wildcats. The Band will perform during the rally and will play the favorite school songs of both the Maryville team and the Wildcats.

At the Oglethorpe game on October 1, there will be a new innovation on the Kentucky campus, it has been announced by SuKy. On the back of each of the 420 student seats in the U. K. stadium there will be placed seven yards of various colors with instructions for using them when signals are called out by the cheerleaders during the half.

Through this manner it is believed that a more forceful and interesting cheering section will result. As a result of the colors of

Arrogance In Culture

IT IS HARD TO understand the attitude of some so-called campus scholars who after being affiliated with the University for a year or so, lapse into a realm of arrogance that may well cause new students to doubt that they are attending a college in a state that is known far and wide for its hospitality and friendliness.

The cultural side of our education with the development and refinement of our minds, tastes and manners is of primary importance. It certainly seems that we should be as democratic and sociable toward our fellows as we can if we are to be considered at all intellectually civilized. We can not be arrogant and cultured, for there is no arrogance in true culture.

There are hundreds of new students enrolled at the University of Kentucky this fall who are unable to become members of the fraternities, sororities or other social groups but who are nevertheless worthy and needful of good fellowship that should and can be afforded them with a minimum of effort on the part of the more experienced members. Your nod or a smile will help lift the spirits of a newcomer immeasurably and you won't miss it.—R. G.

More Faculty Boosters

ON PAGE ONE of today's Kernel appears a story concerning the Boosters Club. It is a good story—as news stories go. It cites the goal of the Boosters as 1,000 members with half of that number to come from Lexington and vicinity. It explains why a $10 membership fee is not exorbitant and why it is necessary. It tells of the fine work of the Boosters and that the present local membership has reached the 300 mark.

But there is one thing which is not mentioned. In that group of 300, only a very few University faculty members are represented. Within the next week or two, perhaps one-fourth of the faculty will be contacted by letter or personally and asked to join the Boosters Club. Some will join at once. But, undoubtedly, there will be objections from others.

A part of this latter group will complain of the membership fee. Another section will say that the duty of an instructor is in the classroom, not on the football field.

Naturally, a professor's place is in the classroom—especially if he has the interest and respect of his students. But an instructor is also vitally affected by the University of which he is a part. And whether we like it or not, whether it is as it should be or not, the name and influence of a university such as ours is affected by the performance of its football team and the enthusiasm of its supporters.

Of course, that is putting it rather bluntly, appealing to the selfish instinct. But there is another side. Students are rather selfish, too. They like to feel that their leader is interested in them and in their interests. And the student body is vitally interested in the Boosters Club. They surely would like to see their instructor strutting into the classroom with a Booster button on his lapel.

Work Of The YM-YWCA

REMEMBER the day you said goodbye to mother, and dad, and all that is home? You came to college expecting to experience annoying pangs of homesickness. You came as a freshman entering upon a new phase of life, slightly bewildered.

Waiting to become immediately acquainted with you at various social functions during the first week were members of the YMCA and YWCA, student Christian organizations on the campus. Last year they planned a program to meet the needs of high school boys and girls who would find themselves college men and women so soon.

Formulating the plans and executing the diversified programs of the YMCA and YWCA are the committee chairmen of the senior cabinets, advised by the secretaries of both organizations. Discussion groups are planned for low-classmen and upperclassmen where students meet to discuss problems of either a social, moral or religious nature.

This year the organizations plan to emphasize religion as it affects all of life, and to promote a better understanding of current social issues. Religious-in-life conferences at which twelve outstanding leaders have been scheduled to speak are to be a part of this semester's work.

For their work in the past, at the present and in the future we as students accord a vote of appreciation. Affiliation with such an organization promises fellowship and growth of character that will remain permanent through the years.—L. L. J.

Scrap Irony

By HARRY WILLIAMS

IT SEEMS THAT "Behind The Eckdahl" made a mistake. That worthy pundit entered the Kernel office the other morning looking like a law student who was lucky enough to get in on the bar exam this year. In other words, he fairly radiated happiness. He was unaware that Fate had stacked the deck. The first person he met was Editor L. T. Iglehart. The following dialogue ensued:

Eckdahl: "Chief, do you know what shrubbery is?"

Iglehart: "No Eckdahl, what is shrubbery?"

Eckdahl: "Shrubbery is what you eat as a dessert, you know, shrubbery shortcake."

Iglehart: "You are fired. I am going to get a humorist to write the humor column in this newspaper."

It is, therefore, with the deepest sympathy in our heart for Mr. Eckdahl and with profound admiration for Mr. Iglehart's taste in humor, that we take over this space. The old gives way to the new, that is, except in the case of President Roosevelt who gives way to no one, but who gives away to everyone.

Yesterday we saw a lot of birds flying east. Now something like this might have disturbed most people. Most people would have said to themselves, "Why are these birds flying east, why are they not flying south?" or possibly, "Why are these birds flying east, why in the hell are they not living south?" We accepted it rather philosophically though, in these days when the Editor of the Kentuckian goes about shaving completely (loosening his collar and everything) in a drug store just because there is an electric razor on demonstration, why, almost anything can happen here. In spite of Sinclair Lewis, and Jeanne Barker.

Comes word of a freshman who approached another freshman and asked him if he knew what pledge button he was wearing. The second freshman said he did not and then the first freshman said, "I don't either, they got me into a room and the only way I could get out was to take the thing." This, then, is higher education the Dale Carnegie way. When fraternities need pledges they merely get the chap into a room and PERSUADE him to join. They say, in effect, "Join our fraternity little boy or we'll stay here and embarrass you until you do."

Martha Jane Rich, who likes Fredric March, good books, dancing, and cigarettes, has been brought to our attention. She seems to be a junior transfer from Mary Baldwin, and she junior transfer from Mary Baldwin, and she also seems to be lovely. She made the equivalent of a "two" standing there. She likes tall men who know what to do in emergencies and if they don't have both these traits, she'll just take them tall. These girls with ideas intrigue us. There's something about a woman who has ideas. Something strangely incongruous, especially if she is as lovely as Miss Rich. It's like finding two pearls in an oyster when you don't generally go for oysters.

Since the government has seen fit to import beavers to assist WPA workers in building a dam, we feel it our duty to point out the futility of such a venture. We once knew a man who grew oranges in Florida. This chap had some trouble with the Orange-Pickers Union (Local 318) and as a result they refused to pick his 1932 crop. One day he saw his pet monkey in an orange tree throwing down the oranges, and a friend who was with him at the time asked him why he didn't buy some more monkeys and let them pick the oranges. Our friend said he had thought of that, but that he didn't think it would work. He said that as soon as he got them well-trained, the damnyankees would come down and free them.

We were reading from Miss Brande's Wake Up And Live the other night. In one of her more brilliant passages she says, "When evening comes, go off into a quiet place and review your day." Now we have a great deal of respect for people who write books that sell a million copies. We hesitate to criticize their philosophy, but in this case we fail to follow the thought. Are we going to "Wake Up And Live" or are we going to "Go off into a quiet place and review our day." Come, come Miss Brande, we feel like saying, let us not lose ourselves in a flight of fantasy. Let us either "Wake Up And Live" or let us forget the whole thing.

SIDELINGS

By CÉPARÉ RIVIEN

ALMOST displacing the weather as a topic of talk, the situation in Czechoslovakia has engendered endless opinions among the campus commentators. Even the most unerudian of coeds have something to say on the subject; and until the final decision was publicized there were as many views as there are meerschaums in Munich. Now that the Czechs have been tossed to the lions, there is less plenitude of pronouncements, but more mourning for their national fate.

Joe Intermaggio, whose political observations are consistently interesting, believes the dismemberment of Versailles' quasi-bred child to be a diplomatic atrocity, an inexorable example of double-barreled duplicity.

Ed Muehler allowed that things were dire enough that American collegians could count on graduating from Arts and Sciences into Central European trenches. Rumsey Garrison cries, "Peace at any price!" and can see nothing wrong in the Sudeten rejoicing the Deutsch. Concurring with Associate Editor Garrison and a vast majority of universities is Helen Friedman, who proclaims pacifism. Power Pritchard has little faith in the idea that the United States will ever start shooting Nazis over anything than invasion of Brooklyn.

It is our personal belief that events are taking an inevitable and perfectly justified turn. No loss of international dignity is worth the cost of a war. Anyway, if the Sudeten want Hitler, let them have him.

We can only say, "Hell, Chamberlain! Hell, peace!"

Convocation, as usual, drummed up trade for the campus cokery. When the recreation Mecca was located on the fourth floor of McVey hall, the story was the same. Tuesday, during the forum at Memorial hall, the Student Union building corridors coagulated with crowds, and the grill was like unto Old Bedlam. Blase upperclassmen clustered about packed tables to exchange small talk and swigs of fountain beverages.

In the midst of the multitude Didi Castle looked with wide-eyed amazement of hem at faithful Jamie Thompson. She had a brief discussion on the difficulties of writing a scandal spread, and was frightened when a bystander told her of a sinister typographical error in the last edition of her gossip gallery. At another table Gladys Dimock, Sally Gaitskill, John Clarke, and George Lamason retailed the latest in risqué anecdotes. Bee Ficklen and Pat Hamilton, the Mutt and Jeff of Kappa Kappa Gamma, paraded from circle to circle. Bee (Mutt) sprang on disconcerted hearers her mellifluous new accent, picked up somewhere in Switzerland.

Hundreds kept pouring into the SUB dispensary; and if anyone had attempted to follow the crowd and thus locate convocation, they would have been sadly misled. It is not too much to hope, however, that some day students will flock in like manner to the speeches in Memorial hall. Yes. There is about as much chance of that happening as there is of Der Fueher winning the Nobel Peace Prize.

At first it was a rumor, but slowly it grew to be a fact. The offices of The Kernel were to be moved.

The beginning of the second semester of summer school saw preparations for the new Grub Street quarters definitely under way. Now, with the offices of the staff located in the sub-basement of McVey hall, the Kernelites can bid a fond farewell to the cubbyhole which served for so long as the one and only of the news-gatherers.

It will not be without some misgivings that the departure will be effected. Within those walls of the old offices memories linger. Upon those walls are engraved the works of those who made Kernel history.

The subtle trace of personalities long gone still pervades the room, bringing mental pictures of George Spencer, now with the Georgetown sheet, and the Associated Press; Chepellef, the mad Russian, during whose reign the Kernel rose to the place of campus purge organ; Kerler, the Brooklyn fan, the New Jersey journalistic puzzle; Ralph Johnson, long-winded and garrulous; Theo Nadlestein, now of the Scripps Howard Chain; Johnny Craddock, Sag Cash, and innumerable others of the like who, by their antics and achievements have haloed the ground of the Kernel offices.

The majority of the staff, however, feels very few qualms about leaving for the newer stamping grounds. The ideas of larger rooms, more privacy, and better working equipment have won their approval. Many of them heaved a sigh of relief at the change. Ray Lathem, long a Kernel mainstay, claims that the biggest reason, that he returned to school this year was to see if they really would change the offices. All of which proves that novelty easily displaces sentimentality as a drawing power.

Betty Murphy's birthday party was to have been quite a sensation. Among those present were Alphagam Mildred Kash and Pi Kap Bobby Stiltz (perpetual motion), SPE Kibbe Vogt, Ed Kee, Signachi pledge Bob Reusch, Billie Dyer, Pi Kap pledge Walter Hodge, Harry Bullock, Johnny Welch, Toar Crady the unmissable, Lovell Fucci (of the hat), Col. Carl Connor (deep breath), George Martin, Letelle Stevenson, and Kitty Wobbe. The celebration was organized by Nick Burlew. Lowell Collings and Mickey Stewart were not there.

BOOK REVIEWS*"Man's Courage"

By Joseph Vogel

Obviously written as a protest against the present system of administering federal relief is this novel, "Man's Courage," by Joseph Vogel.

Mr. Vogel seems to be one of these gentlemen who take a great delight in panning existing conditions, without giving a thought as to whether it is possible to improve them or how to improve them.

Chief concern of Mr. Vogel in this book is the relief situation, but he finds space to take a few assortments at education, the medical profession, city government, police, and organized religion.

The book gives the impression that the author hoped it would be heralded as a "powerful indictment." It isn't.

Understand I am not trying to prove that there is nothing wrong with the relief system—I have heard many details concerning it from Republican friends.

There may be some great literature arise from our present situation in the U. S., but it won't be "Man's Courage."

The story concerns a Polish immigrant, one Adam Wolack and his family. Naturally Wolack, a husky but uneducated fellow, is out of work. The author leads him through various skirmishes with the above-named institutions—with Wolack getting the worst of it and the institutions getting condemnation.

Very prosaic in style, Mr. Vogel seems to want to depend on the imagination of the reader—I personally, could imagine many better stories than "Man's Courage." The first half of the book was better written, more sanely thought out, and much more interesting than the last half.

If you are an anti New Dealer and want to feast on the atrocities of the relief system, read "Man's Courage." But I am warning you, you would get more satisfaction, and just as much literature, out of Mr. William Randolph Hearst's editorials.—A. C. E.

Kenning The Campus*By JIM CALDWELL

One of the mysteries of this life is the origin of gags. Once I heard a gag, and I decided to trace it back and try to remember just where I had first heard it—and if possible, to determine its source. After wracking the remains of what was once a brain, I finally traced it to Centre. How it got there, I'll never know. You've all heard it, I know. You remember—the one that goes: Are you-a-Phi-Delt? —no—I'm—just—naturally-reputable. Well, anyway, the first time I heard it, it was being used by some Phi Delt's at Centre to goad on the wrath of some Betas. Then the Kentucky Phi Dels lifted it and began to use it against the Sigma Chis. Then one day in Hygiene class, of all places, a KA heard it and immediately employed it against the Phi Dels. His brethren took up the cry and this went on for about two weeks. Then it died out. Suddenly one day about a month later, for no apparent reason at all, it suddenly popped up in a column in the Kernel, and then the whole campus took it up. It was only stopped by the fact that school had to let out some day, which it did. Now that the summer recess is over, I suppose the vicious cycle will start all over again. Watch for it—it's sure to be along some day.

Perhaps you have often wondered just what is the correct thing to do when a lecture starts out dry and keeps getting drier and drier and drier until you think you're about ready to catch the first boat to Fourth Street. Today I saw the solution. It came from that very noted exponent of subtle sayings, KD Mariani Gardhouse. She was sitting in class, which she informed me she occasionally does, and noticing the place to have become definitely gummy, she quietly got up; looked calmly around, and in a voice steady and clear, inquired: "Shall we leave?" ... Wheew! Gorsh! Quick Meadows—the lecpack ...

If they don't watch out they're going to find a pipe or something some of these days ... Taking the benches out of the Post Office was the meanest trick ever pulled around here ... This would be a much happier place if all issues of SOUR MASH could be as good as the one just out ...

The Chicago Plan—Will It Supplant The Old System?

In recent months a new plan of higher education has been brought forward by one of the leading American colleges. This new plan, known as the Chicago Plan, was designed to stop the failing of colleges and universities to fit modern youth for the world in which they live.

In 1930 this outstanding university put into effect the working plan whereby the first two years of college became a junior college—a two year unit. Then the school put into effect the principle of selection. They gave everyone a chance to continue in the school, but permitted none to do so unless he had shown the interest and skill the professional work demands.

If a boy or girl shows the required initiative and ability he will receive the opportunity to continue for two more years and take an advanced degree. At this university the modern boy doesn't waste his college career by playing football, and then be turned loose in the world a bewildered member of society, seeking a place to earn a living.

Everyone remembers the system of grade schools wherein you were promoted from one grade to another after making certain grades or marks. High schools and universities also use this system. But under this new system there is no longer the use of a report card with grades on it. A person may or may not report to classes, because no attendance record is kept. The students is graded only on the result of general exams.

The system of general examinations is very unique in the fact that these series of tests are only taken by the student when he is ready. The laborious concentration on credits ceases to be a curse to the student. At Chicago the initiative rests with the student and he is the loser if he doesn't take it.

Apparently the students are accepting this plan very readily as the attendance is very high at every class. The students who have been admitted to this school since the conception of this plan have shown a very marked superiority by all the tests that have been applied. Almost half those entering this university rank in the upper tenth of their high school graduating class. However this doesn't mean that the university is only open to valedictorians and geniuses. It encourages all students who have graduated in the upper half of the high school class to enroll.

Since the start of the new plan, the amount of required reading for each student was reduced. However, a check on the university library shows that book withdrawals have risen steadily.

The students seem to feel that the education is their education. If a teacher duplicates or becomes borsome, he is immediately bombarded with complaints.

Here, freshmen and sophomores ask for more frequent examinations. Here students ask that the library be kept open for a longer period of time. Here students discuss questions in philosophy, political science, and biology, at the dinner table and at every lounging place. And finally here the students take books with them on their vacations and actually study them. Truly, this is a remarkable system. It is no dream, no Utopian idea for universities, but a reality in the mid-western state of Illinois.

Probably someday all universities will adopt this plan. WHO KNOWS?

Kentucky Student Has Studied Around World

Singapore, Madagascar, Honolulu—these are far away places that hold a magical spell for you no doubt. Enrolled as a student at this University is a student who has been there, and even farther—around the world. The past two years Harriet Canary, daughter of Captain J. E. Canary, United States Army, attended the University of Hawaii at Honolulu.

In December, 1937, Harriet sailed from Hawaii aboard an army cruiser for a month's voyage before returning to the United States. Blond and fragile built, her blue eyes merrily dancing, she recounted to me stories of life on board the ship.

Hers has not been an ordinary existence, but one linked with exciting and interesting adventures. She has lived for seven years in Hawaii. Asked to speak the native language, dance the intricate gyrations of the hula, or repeat in sorrowful tones the chants of the islands, she could oblige. At the University of Hawaii, where every race and creed classify as students, they are never bored. For an hour's di-

Football Bowed To UK Students In 1880

Football made its first appearance here in 1880, according to a feature article in the "Kentucky Kernel," September 23, 1924.

Early in the spring of 1880, two or three "Kentucky University" students read an advertisement telling of the new game which was played with a football.

Their curiosity being aroused, the boys proceeded to investigate the matter.

Thus by means of their own nations and those of other interested persons, $6 was raised, and a football was purchased from Philadelphia. Probably this was the first football ever seen in Kentucky.

Accompanying the ball was a book of rules. The zealous lads organized their own team, which consisted of guards, tackles, centers, ends and backfield men—practically as it is today—and played among themselves.

From the land of flowers, of black sand beaches at Cona Island to the bluegrass of Kentucky, Harriet has journeyed to major in political science and to learn the steps of the Big Apple!

Frosh Engineers Find Aid To Study In New Schedule

Freshmen in the College of Engineering will no longer be told that only one of three students can be expected to pass his first year's studies. Through the use of compulsory study halls during the hours they have no classes, the average grade is being considerably raised. To aid the freshmen in choosing their field of concentration there is a regular third hour assembly every Friday at which the heads of various departments speak on the work taught by their department.

This week Dean Graham will read the announcements and introduce Miss Tuttle, who will speak on the use of the library and the variety of material it contains. Aside from the regular class work each engineer must spend at least one summer in field work. The civil and mining students go to the engineering camp near Quicksand, Ky., for practical application of their classroom work. The Mechanical and Electrical majors spend a summer in the shop and laboratories instead of doing their work in the course of the school year.

There is much to be found in the engineering buildings that would interest any student on the campus. In the center of the newly completed buildings is a quadrangle that, when the landscaping is completed, will be one of the show pieces of the campus.

31 Law Students Pass Bar Exam; Hit 26% Of Total

Thirty-one of the one hundred and eighteen students who passed the Kentucky State Bar Examination held in Frankfort, June 23, 24, and 25, are from our College of Law, ten having graduated last June and the other twenty-one being undergraduates.

The graduate students are Lee Lenter, Dry Ridge; Frank M. Dailey, Jr., Frankfort; James E. Hunt, Henderson; James S. Carroll, Lexington; Harry W. Franks, Lexington; R. B. Harrington, Paintsville; Robert Van Bever, Jr., Pineville; William Claude Caudill, Prestonsburg; James M. Terry, Williamsburg; B. T. Moynahan, Jr., Nicholasville.

The undergraduates include James D. Graham, Hampton; Joe Bailey Orr, Bowling Green; Frank W. Starks, Elizabethtown; James S. Green, Harlan; Delmer D. Howard, Lexington; James D. Ruark, Uniontown; Elmer Conny Hammonds, Lexington; H. H. Gearinger, Lexington; James R. Bush, Jr., Lexington; Jo McGowen Ferguson, Lexington; Robert Dickson, Lear, Louisville; Howard C. Hadden, Mt. Sterling; Phillip Schiff, Newport; Paul Oberst, Owensboro; John K. Wells, Paintsville; C. E. Farley, Pikeville; Edgar Venters, Pikeville; Nathan Benjamin Cooper, Providence; Wilbur Earl Dean, Salvisa; Leonard S. Stephens, Whitley City; John Lee Young, Winchester.

Many of the graduates already have positions in other firms or have set up practice for themselves.

Mr. Franks is a lawyer for a large oil firm in Texas. Mr. Van Bever, who is a former member of the Kentucky State Legislature, is practicing law in Pineville, and Mr. Caudill is now connected with Bond and Bond, a law firm in Prestonsburg. Mr. Dailey is practicing law with former Attorney General Baylon Wooton in Frankfort, and Mr. Terry is in the legal department of the L. and N. Railroad in Louisville. Mr. Moynahan is continuing his studies at Harvard University where he has entered the law school.

Word has been received from three other graduates of the College of Law in June. Sam Milner, Paris, has been granted a fellowship at the University of Michigan where he is now a graduate student of law. Charles M. Gadd, Bowling Green, and M. S. Hollingsworth, Middlesboro, both have accepted positions with the Carter Oil Company, St. Louis, for procuring leases and examining titles to oil lands in Kentucky. The 1938 class of thirty-six students which was graduated in June from the College of Law is the largest number to have ever been graduated at one time from that college.

Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary journalism fraternity, will hold the first meeting of the year at 5:00 p.m. Monday in the Student Union building.

wide their doors to learning, we young things fling ourselves into the arms of Venus and abandon ourselves to the armours of youth.

And in connection with lectures there are certain academic lectures which fairly hurl their germ-coated words at the students in their lectures which may have something to do with the spreading of germs.

Still another method of contamination is the punch served at many sporting banquets.

These are usually open houses in the fall. This is due to the lack of sanitary washing that is given to the individual cups and also to the low alcoholic percentage of the mixture.

Alcohol as we know it is an effective germicide and if used in a great enough percentage is also effective homicide.

And in conclusion might we inspect what is perhaps the greatest source of colds and contaminations, that great institution of American fraternities, "rushing".

In this we find more bull and banter served up, than in any restaurant in the country and many more sources of cold infection.

For here are tongue and vocal cords unleashed in such a manner that the poor freshman cannot escape infection. And here is where colds are started than anywhere else. So little men, beware! Else the cold reduce your nasal passages to a sluggish state and your speech becomes a cross of baby talk and Afghaneese. Then no frost, even the boys in "Mortgage Manor," will take you.

Rates for this famous college service are low, and you can send collect, you know (only by Railway Express, by the way). It's a very popular method and adds to the happy thought. ## Syphilis Ratios Compared In 'Shadow on the Land'

With fifty thousand new cases of syphilis reported in New York State each year and only 2,000 new cases in Scandinavia populations being the same, America can rightly ask if her education, research and treatment for the sick is bringing the desired result.

Dr. Thomas Parran in his book "Shadow On the Land" says that "there is reason to believe that if all conditions due to syphilis were reported as such it would be found a leading cause of death in the United States."

After this startling statement, Dr. Parran goes on to say that syphilis finds "its best soil" in mucous membrane; therefore it is spread chiefly through sexual contact and belongs to the group of so-called general or sex-borne diseases."

Comparison by Dr. Parran of an infected person who takes medical and one who has no medical treatment shows the possible endings caused by syphilis. Under medical treatment the person takes tests, then treatments, which is followed by continued treatments, and the result is that 86% of the total are cured.

Without medical treatment in the latent stages of the disease and in the infected person may infect other persons. The possible endings of the person without treatment is heart disease, apoplexy, blindness, insanity, or it may show no noticeable illness.

In Copenhagen 99% of the infected persons are treated sufficiently while in the United States only 1% of the infected persons are sufficiently treated.

Dr. Parran offers as a remedy for this a routine test by insurance companies, law enforcement agencies, hospitals, marriage license bureaus, government employers, and private business employers. This is to be followed up with "treatment for the sick, education for all, and research" to be conducted by medical and health agencies.

The New York Times recommends "Shadow on the Land" for all laymen.

RULE CHANGE

Previously it was a touch back when two passes in the same series of downs were incomplete behind the goal line. Now it is a touch back only when a pass is incomplete over the goal line on the fourth down.

Plans for an expanded program of education in syphilis control and social hygiene to reach ultimately 35,000,000 young men and women throughout the nation were announced in New York recently by Dr. William F. Snow, Chairman of the Administrative Committee of the American Social Hygiene Association.

The Federal Government will spend more than $135,000,000 during the coming year in the largest national health program in history. Included in this amount will be an expenditure of $3,000,000 to be used in a direct attack on syphilis and gonorrhea in which local physicians will be furnished drugs and be paid from Government funds for treating these diseases.

According to opinions of the Court of Appeals, "there can be no question but what an educational institution in Kentucky is regarded as the unnecessary custom of employing private accountants to perform this service at a large annual expense to the University when the state has an officer continuously employed to perform such duties."

"The University is owned by the state. It is a part of the department of education. All property controlled or operated by it except that property originally donated by the federal government to the State A. and M. College, has been procured from proceeds out of appropriations made to and for the University by the General Assembly of Kentucky," Hollifield ruled.

The assistant Attorney General also stated that not only was this true, but that the bulk of all annual operating expense is derived from the same source. Further, that it was the duty of the state inspector and examiner, and is now the duty of the Department of Finance to investigate and audit those institutions in which the state has an interest.

According to opinions of the Court of Appeals, "there can be no question but what an educational institution in Kentucky is regarded as an elemosnary institution," and if so, it is the duty of the state inspector and examiner to annually investigate, audit and report to the governor the financial condition of all such institutions, owned or operated in whole or part by this state, and this audit and report should be sufficiently broad so as to give the governor a complete understanding of not only the financial condition, but the past management and use of the funds furnished to said institution by the State of Kentucky." An annual savings of approximately $1500 is seen. If the practice of hiring private accountants to audit University accounts is discontinued and the auditing investigation and reporting is turned over to Director Sewell's office.

A report to the governor on the authority of the director to post audits to investigate the financial affairs of the University was sought.

Oglethorpe

The Stormy Petrels from down Atlanta, Georgia, way possessors of a less strenuous pigskin schedule than usual, trade tacles with the Bib Blues October 1. Picked as the second of the two teams that Kentucky mentor, "Ab" Kirlan has predicted his warriors would wallops, the Atlantans stepped off on the lame foot when they allowed the Furman gridsters to trip them 13-6 last Saturday. One game's experience plus shifty, deceptive backs should overshadow the viciousness of the Stormy Petrels.

Vanderbilt

Clipping the lid off the pot of gridiron brawls with Washington U. tomorrow and then tapering off with Western Kentucky Teachers College, next week the powerful Commodores of Vanderbilt, conceded a 2-1 gamble to navigate over the Crimson Tide of "Alabama" in their annual "Turkey Day" skirmish this year, sail with a crew of dynamiters onto the local landscape October 8. Ray Morrison's band of pirates captained by Marvin Franklin, may slice off a larger hunk of Wildcat flesh than the 12-0 portion they were satisfied with last year.

Washington and Lee

With five sophomore soldiers filling the moleskins of graduated warriors at Lexington, Virginia stronghold, the Washington and Lee Generals, victors over only Wofford and Virginia University last season will await with ready guns October 15 to avenge the 41-6 set-back received at the hands of "Twenty Grand" Davis and Company on the Euclid Avenue greenward last year. In addition to the five sophomore sensations who have increased the pulse rate of Coach William W. Brown's win fever, six varsity regulars will be on hand to greet the Blues with military pyrotechnics.

Xavier

Conceded a chance to break better than even in a nine-game schedule, the pugnacious Musketeers of Cincinnati, still grinning at the worried Wildcats who scratched often but struck home only once in last year's 6-0 scramble, will play homecoming hosts to the Blue and Whites October 22, at Corcoran Field in Cincinnati. Paced by the brilliant passing and running star, Russ Nickel, the mighty Musketeers, armed with seven returning regulars should be rated an even chance to nip the Cat's tail.

Alabama

The once surging Crimson Tide faded to a mere anemic trickle at the close of the '37 season after being accredited undisputed victor in the Southeastern League displayed no evidence that would openly brand them as such. However news from Tuscaloosa town brings merry messages that the Crimson Elephant, still piloted by veteran mentor Frank Thomas, is all geared to trample out any rising leaguers in the Southeast. The piston-like knees of "Bama's" Holm, Kligrow, and Zivich, coupled with a homicidal heat wave to dispel our lads 41-0 last year.

In a way of thanking the "Bama boys for their Homecoming greeting at Denny Stadium last year, the gilt-edged claws of the Kentucky, "Wildcat" will be filed for the Thomas aggregation, October 29, when Homecoming Day will be celebrated.

Georgia Tech

Stripped of seven superb performers, the once sturdy stalk of Georgia Tech is doomed to a huge letdown, unless W. A. Alexander can uncover a replica of his '37 backfield combination of Konemann and Sims. Although subjected to a 32-0 stinging in their own back yard by the romping Yellow Jackets last year, the Wildcats, whose bumps have been solved by the happy news of the Jacket weakness, will invade the Jacket nest November 5.

Clemson

Deserting their South Carolina lair for a day, the Clemson Tigers, who should be bloodthirsty after seven weeks of nursing flesh wounds that they are certain of receiving at the hands of such formidable opponents as South Carolina, Tennessee, Tulane, and Wake Forest, travel north to the den of the Kentucky Wildcat at Euclid Avenue, November 12. Inspired by the magnificent playing and leadership of furrowbrowed Charlie Woods, who will guide the Tigers through the ambitious nine game backwoods, the Clemson lads should come to the Kentucky lair with claws a-flying. This year's fracas is a renewal of活力 for the schools who have had one year pause. In '36 the Kentucky Blues eked out a 7-6 decision by virtue of Johnson's after touchdown placement.

Tennessee

With one of the worst seasons that he has ever experienced at Tennessee behind him, Colonel Neyland, Volunteer wizard, with the aid of Cafego, Wood, Sneed, and Duncan is all set for a big year. In last year's renewal of the Turkey Day feud, the vicious Vols bounded the Cats with a 13-0 count. This season the Kentuckians clamp the cover over a nine game schedule when they travel to Knoxville.

You Can Be
My Friend—
Your 'Roomie'

By James Hall

How to get along with the roomie? That's easy, for a recent survey shows that the trouble with a roommate usually arises from a limited number of sources. Once these sources are recognized, and by practising a bit of restraint, the fiery redheads and the intellectual types can rub elbows for weeks on end with never a suggestion of fistfights.

The biggest cause of roommate trouble is that root of all evil, money. Some people find it extremely irritating to have a roommate continually borrowing small sums of money for extra-curricular eating and those smooth Friday night dates. The midnight snack and the date are definitely a part of college life, but not on roomie's pocket cash.

Another constant source of woes to platonic friendship is the featherers which make the common crowd a satorial eagle. Imagine a man's consternation when he finds the blue polka dot tie with the heart-shaped gray spot dangling, day after day, from the neck of his roommate. After a semester of this plaid piracy, the original owner feels guilty about wearing his own.

Besides money and clothes, the "communicative community" idea often breaks up what should have been a beautiful friendship. The comically inclined roomie believes: "What is yours is mine and what is mine is mine." This ploddy appy applies to everything from bath salts to razor blades.

If roommates hurdle all these pitfalls, there is one more joker which may cause many a blue eye to become tearful. It is here that sex slithers into the picture.

You guessed it! Don't chisel in on roomie's best girl or boy friend, whichever the case may be, for nothing can cause cold shoulder to be dispensed more quickly than a quick coke with "the" wrong person. Understand now, this means an intentional pass at "the" boy or girl . . . of course duty is duty.

To sum it all up there are four things to avoid: exchanging money, wearing each other's clothes, borrowing tooth brushes, and as George Washington said, "Beware of Foreign Entanglements."

Pres. Frank L. McVey spoke at an open forum discussion of campus problems at a dinner meeting of ODK, national honorary men's leadership fraternity, at the Student Union building last night. Sherman Hinckley, president of the organization, presided.

Committees were appointed to investigate the cases of students who are denying themselves necessities in order to attend college, and to make preliminary reports on the relationships between fraternities and the University.

(Continued from Page One) for three years until he traded his helmet for a sheep-skin diploma will probably be handed to elastic-legged Carl "Hoot" Combs, 173 pounds of side stepping sophomore. Combs, while yet to reach the broken field class of Davis, has shown flashes of brilliant leather juggling. The other half slot may see another sophomore, Bill Wieand, or a junior, Cameron Davis, in the opening role. Davis, after being mauled almost beyond recognition in last season's South Carolina encounter, seems recovered from his injuries and may receive the starting nod.

Plenty of Backs

The quarterback post will find Joe Shepherd barking the signals and doing most of the team's punting. Another survivor from last year's squad, Wilce Carnes, will open at fullback. Sophomore Charley Ishmael may break into the game from the fullback's post. Dave Zoeller and Don Powell, both sophomores, will possibly see service in the game from one of the half-back positions.

Three members of last year's starting line, Joe Hagan, Joe Boss and Wendell Skaggs, walked the diploma plank last June, another veteran, Ed Sydnor, was dismissed for a break of discipline and another, Larry Garland, pulled up with the miseries in his leg during a practice session and will be lost for the entire year. Thomas Spickard, who is expected to start at one of the guards, was a member of last year's opening eleven until he was declared ineligible for not carrying enough scholastic hours.

Neal Scott on Flank Post One sophomore, Neal Scott, is expected to team with either Bill McCubbin or Larry Spears at the flank posts. McCubbin was awarded a letter for his services last season while Spears is spending his first semester with the grididers, being a squad member of the basketball troupe.

The tackle openings will probably be clogged by a pair of 200-pound juniors, Luke Linden and Harry Brown. The guard duties will fall to Spickard and sophomore Robert Palmer.

Capable substitutes for both the guard and tackle positions are two deep with Pete Vires, Eddie Fritz, Emmett Willoughby and Alex Parada ready for the guard call and Walt Reed, Ed Jacobs, John Elbner and Larry Gamble ready to relieve a tackle.

University Personality Sketches
Show Pros' Character Facets

If you have definitely made up your mind as to what you intend to do when you graduate from the University but get sidetracked instead, don't feel cheated. Prof. Raymond Barnhart of the art department did all sorts of work before he came to the University two years ago.

With a start as a deckhand on a steamer, rate clerk in a railroad office, time keeper on a building construction, laborer in glass plants, all minor jobs on road construction, radio and refrigerator salesman, and manager of an electrical appliance store. Professor Barnhart at last found the work he liked best in art.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., Professor Barnhart came to Lexington for the first time in 1936. Although all of his relatives live there he rarely goes back to his home town—making the trip every two or three years.

He came from an Irish family, two state history classes, strenuously advocates the elimination of "class cutting" by the students in his class.

Born in Louisville, Mississippi, well after the turn of the century, Dr. Clark attended Choctaw County Agriculture High School in Mississippi, where he was graduated in 1925. Seven years later he won his Ph. D. from Duke University after having attended the University of Virginia and the University of Kentucky. In 1935 he came to the University as assistant professor of history, the position which he has held since.

During his four years at the University Dr. Clark has collected large files of state and national documents for the University library. He has had numerous articles published in historical journals besides being the author of several books, "Beginning of the L. and N.", "A History of the Southern Branches of the Illinois Central System," and his well known "History of Kentucky." He is considered one of the foremost authorities on the history of the South.

Mr. Barnhart said that he is much more interested in the company of young people rather than than older and that most of his friends are young. Although he is interested in teaching young people, he dislikes students who are not interested in their work. He loves to dance, but he feels out of place at the University dances because he believes that dancing should be relaxing, not gaudy.

Although he has never been farther west than Chicago nor farther east than Buffalo, he is going abroad this summer to see something of the world. Mr. Barnhart said that he is much more interested in the company of young people rather than than older and that most of his friends are young. Although he is interested in teaching young people, he dislikes students who are not interested in their work. He loves to dance, but he feels out of place at the University dances because he believes that dancing should be relaxing, not gaudy.

He expects a great deal from all of his young engineers. New students soon learn that the great tall man with the white hair means business. Later they discover that the apparent sternness masks a kindly teacher, who could not remain aloof, because he is so anxious to help with any student problem.

He fought steadily against numerous obstacles for the Student Union building until it became a real achievement. It is easy to see why Dean Graham of the College of Engineering will always be "The Colonel" to his friends.

Self-made "model college boy" is Thomas D. Clark, assistant professor of history, who won his Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctor's degree from three major universities without once "cutting" a class.

STUDENT UNION HOP

DANCE IN THE "SOUTH'S MOST BEAUTIFUL BALLROOM"

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

WITH mid-season fury the football storm that has been gathering for the past nine months will break upon the waiting head of John Q. Public tomorrow as practically every major team in the country breaks from the starting barrier and thumps toward the first turn in the 1938 grid derby. From the coast of New England to the sun parched South, from the derrick forests of Texas to California—across the sweep of the nation—the tread of cleated feet approaches, and the year is officially in.

Kentucky goes to bat in the first inning against the Mountaineers from Maryville College. Inexperience casts a heavy veil around the Kentucky grid moon with experts agreed on but one thing concerning the Wildcat team; that based on experience, the starting eleven will be as green as a St. Patrick's Day decoration. But one member of the possible starting team, Captain Sherman Hinckelbein, can be classed as a survivor from last year's team. Then too, 27 of the squad's 41 members are sophomores. Small wonder then that authorities shake their heads and look melancholy over the chances of the Cats escaping the campaign without being trapped at least six times.

Possibilities Lurking

From outward appearances it might appear that Kentucky's chances for escaping the year with an even fair record is as slim as a six o'clock shadow, but there are strong cards in the Blue and White pack, or so it appears from this armchair. The line which in the consensus of expert opinions couldn't stop a strong nose bleed, has possibilities which if uncovered will make or break Kentucky this year. There is no denying the fact that the men in the front line positions have been initiated into the fascinating business of blocking. Mark this down as one of the greatest improvements to date, not that the blocking is yet well perfected, but the foundation has been developed. Their defensive power remains to be accepted or declined. The center slot in the line is as strong as any in the South, the guards have played hot and cold ball, but pack enough promise and size to clog their portion of the front trench. The tackles carry enough potentiality to cause any team to detour and the ends, despite their hereditary defensive faults, can snag passes. The backfield, minus any of the brilliant individuals of previous years, is brimming over with sophomores whose merit remains to be proven and enough seasoned performers to give the leather-lugging department a well-rounded form.

I'll String Along

So far no definite reason for expecting the Cats to defeat even Maryville has been given. There are no reasons for basing such a prediction that you can put your finger on, the one factor that I can point to for creating my optimism over a team as tainted with question marks as Kentucky, is an intangible something called spirit or determination. A talk with any member of the team is evidence of the presence of this will-o-the-wisp in the Cat-cage. Spirit is that tug inside a player that urges from him that last bit of effort necessary to drag down a runner or to hit a rapidly closing hole in the line. The installation of this improved mental state into the Wild-Kittys is one of the greatest changes brought to Stoll field by Kirwan and his new dynasty and spirit and willingness to mix it on every play has more than once meant the difference between a good and poor team. I don't know if the team takes this opening game, but personally I'm as nervous as a bullet laying its first egg.

Silly Season Open

Each year at the opening of the grid wars, sports writers get a far away shell-shocked look in their eyes and kid themselves into believing they are adept at picking the Saturday winners. In this respect I'm one of the boys, except that I not only pick the winners but the scores. My system is easy, all you do is jot down the games, for the first team's score you think of any number, then look at the next team and for their score you divide your weight by the number of months in the year, then relax and wait for the predictions to explode in your face.

As I know full well, my predictions will prove wrong and the
